eBillingHub Names Greg Coticchia CEO

Firm's Advisor for Many Years Takes the Helm as Company Expands

PITTSBURGH, July 3, 2007 — eBillingHub®, the leader in simplifying law firm electronic billing, today announced the appointment of software industry veteran Greg Coticchia as CEO. Coticchia has spent more than 25 years at high technology start-ups, including executive leadership roles in strategic planning, marketing, business development, sales, and general management. His skill in positioning products, services, and companies helped drive the great success of Legent (now Computer Associates) and AXENT (now Symantec), as well as establish new markets and company leadership for such firms as LogicLibrary, Mallett Technology, TruSecure (now Verizon Business Security Solutions).

Coticchia has twice served as both CEO and COO of start-up companies, and has been involved or responsible for the launch of over 100 products and solutions, and several companies. His publications and presentations on marketing strategy and product management have been recognized as both visionary and thought-provoking by leaders in the technology business. Mr. Coticchia has served on many boards, assisting senior management with strategic planning and other critical initiatives, and has been recognized for his work and contribution in his service to these organizations. "The investors and ownership team is thrilled with the hiring of Greg, and, more specifically, with the opportunity to add a talented, dynamic, and very successful leader to an already deep team," said Thomas Lutz, chairman of the eBillingHub board. "Greg is an accomplished software executive whose background and energy will be tremendous assets to the company."

"With Greg at the helm, coupled with eBillingHub's accelerating success in the marketplace, the company is poised to move to the next level," Lutz added.

A graduate of the University of Pittsburgh in Industrial Engineering where he also received his MBA, he currently teaches both business-to-business marketing and entrepreneurial leadership at the University Of Pittsburgh Katz School Of Business. Mr. Coticchia has also been an instructor for Duquesne University School of Leadership, and the University of Phoenix, and guest lecturer at Carnegie-Mellon University.

In addition to his many recognitions and awards from the businesses he has served, Coticchia was named as a finalist three times for the Ernst and Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award and for the Tech 50 CEO of the Year. Additionally he was named a 2006 Distinguished Graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, Katz School of Business.

About eBillingHub

eBillingHub is the leading provider of Software as a Service (SaaS) for law firms that makes it possible for them to simplify the electronic billing process. The company's patent-pending technology provides a comprehensive and collaborative approach for preparing, tracking, submitting and managing the electronic billing process. Unlike LEDES creation tools, the eBillingHub optimizes the ebilling process by integrating a law firm's time & billing software with the firm's clients and their e-billing vendors through a single web portal. The eBillingHub is headquartered in Pittsburgh. For more information, visit <http://www.ebillinghub.com>
